URGING NEWLANDS FOR THE VACANCY.

There is a vacancy in the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives caused by the death of ex-Speaker Crisp of Georgia. The chair of Congressman Newlands of Nevada to the position are being urged by Pacific coast members and unless too many rival candidates spring up there is a strong probability of his appointment. He has three times been elected to the House of Representatives and the large majority which he received at the recent election shows that he is in accord with the people of this State and that his services and ability are appreciated by his constituents. He is considered an authority on financial and economic measures and his views on the tariff question, which is likely to be discussed at much length in the next Congress, are very conservative. He believes in an equitable tariff, which will be just to the industries of the West as well as the East, and favors reasonable protection for wool and hides as well as for manufactures of wool and leather.

The Ways and Means Committee is the most important in Congress. All revenue measures must originate with that committee or, at least, receive the approval of the committee to stand the slightest chance of becoming a law. Under the rules now governing the House of Representatives nearly all legislation is framed in committees.

The majority of each committee reflects the opinion of the majority of the House and the report of the majority is invariably adopted. Under Mr. Reed's rules only a day or two is allowed for the general discussion of bills which may involve millions upon millions of dollars and only a few members, except those on the committee, are permitted to discuss a bill after it is reported to the House. The importance, therefore, to a State of having a member of the Ways and Means Committee cannot be over estimated. Though with the minority Mr. Newlands abilities are recognized by the majority and should be honored with the appointment the Pacific coast will have a friend at court.

The Ways and Means Committee is composed of seventeen members, not one of whom is from a State west of the Missouri. The great West has been completely ignored in making up the committee and its interests have suffered in consequence. In justice to the vast territory west of the Missouri it should be represented on so important a committee, and a more fitting person for the place than Mr. Newlands could scarcely be selected. It would be a deserved honor to the man and a credit not only to Nevada, but to the whole coast.

CROOKED MINT WORK.

Two enterprising citizens started a mint at Los Angeles. In deference to the prejudices of the gold men against standard dollars, the Los Angeles mint confined its operations exclusively to half-dollars. The lynx-eyed detectives, however, were on the alert and "spotted" one of the mint operatives, and by shadowing him night and day succeeded in capturing his associate and the whole mint plant. The latter comprised dies, molds, metals and quite a sum of counterfeit coin, all half-dollars.

It is not stated whether the metal used at the mint was of standard fineness or merely pewter and glass, but that will probably be developed at the trial. As complaints were made to the police by storekeepers that counterfeit half-dollars were being passed upon them, the presumption is that the coins were not made of standard silver.

The authorities at Washington say that bogus coins are being minted in various parts of the country and that there is a considerable amount of it in circulation. These coins are admittedly as good as those made in the United States mints. The workmanship is good, the metal is fine and the quantity the same as in the genuine coins. How to suppress these mints is a question that is now puzzling the authorities and the Secretary of the Treasury has been authorized to institute a series of experiments with a view of devising some method by which counterfeit coins can be distinguished from those made by the Government.

It appears that the Carson mint, as conducted in the good old days when fealty to party covered a multitude of sins and protected scoundrels from merited punishment was not the only money making institution in the country where crookedness was practised and the Government defrauded.

GLOOMY FOR EX-OFFICE HOLDERS.

It is given out in the east, apparently upon the authority of Mr. Hanna, as it appears in the New York gold papers, that no ex-office holder will be appointed to the few hundred offices, which are not under the Civil Service rules, which will be at the disposal of the new administration. This rule, it is stated, applies to land agents, District Attorneys, postmasters, Indian agents and internal revenue collectors. Hundreds of persons who held office under President Harrison are now applying for their old positions under the new administration. They are given no encouragement, but are informed that new men have come into politics in the last four years, and that many old men never received recompense for work done in the past. For this reason the offices, as a general rule, will be distributed among the new men, or those who have not been rewarded in the past. That there will be exceptions there is no doubt, but these will be where the applicant has a "political pull" that the President cannot resist. His recognition will, of course, be given the gold Democrats for their invaluable services to Mr. Hanna in the doubtful States, and as they did not hold office under Harrison's Administration, it will not be a violation of the rule to appoint one to office here and there.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

Ex-Queen Liliuokalani of the Hawaiian Islands is going to Boston.

The Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee were in session for two hours and a half yesterday, but nothing was definitely agreed upon.

The Court of Appeals of Kentucky has affirmed the judgment of the lower court in the case of Alonzo Walling, an accomplice of Scott Jackson in the murder of Pearl Bryan.

Major O. M. Brown, brother of Rev. C. O. Brown, in discussing the suicide of Mrs. Sarah B. Cooper and daughter, said he believed the deed was the result of the church trial, and his wife thinks their death is the judgment of God.

A positive denial has been made at the Department of State at Washington that the Turkish Minister by direction of the Sultan has entered a protest against the language of the President's message relating to Turkish affairs.

Rev. C. O. Brown, who figured in the church scandal in San Francisco, has mysteriously disappeared. He was in Dubuque, Iowa, about six weeks ago and left there for Chicago. His friends say they do not know his present whereabouts.

As a result of a drunken brawl at Modesto, California, J. H. Young, a miner, and William Fritchard, a gambler, fought a duel with pistols. Young was shot in the shoulder and abdomen and fatally wounded; Fritchard escaped injury, but is now in jail.

The Cuban Junta has been informed that Macco was assassinated through the treachery of his physician who led him and his staff across the Troche, where they were met by Abumeda and the whole party, with the exception of Dr. Zetucha, were cut to pieces with machetes.

A private pension bill for the relief of Mrs. Flora A. Darling was favorably acted upon by the House in Committee of the Whole. When it came to pass the bill it was attacked on the ground that Mrs. Darling was the wife of a Confederate General. The point of no quorum was then raised and the bill went over until next Friday.

Frank Robbins, an enterprising reporter, clandestinely procured the news by eavesdropping in the consultation room of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky of the decision in the Walling case. He had two flags, one white and one black. Representatives of other papers saw him wave the black flag and informed the Court. Robbins was arrested for contempt.

Josephine S. Jeroeka, a relative of Count Palaski who fought in the revolution, committed suicide by taking poison at her home in Brooklyn, New York. She was the claimant for two millions of dollars which it is said her famous grand uncle advanced to the United States. She had a terrible struggle with poverty and was finally reduced to selling papers, and was recently dependent upon charity.

Orders have been issued for the return of all members of the National Guard of Colorado to Leadville for duty. This applies to several hundred men who have been home on furlough. The order is said to be due to the fact that over 200 members of the National Guard have joined a company now being organized in Denver for service in Cuba. A recruiting office has been opened in Denver and over 600 names are enrolled.

Boston does not propose being outdone in the sensational line by San Francisco. Yesterday morning S. P. Putnam and Mary L. Collins were found dead in a room occupied by the woman. The woman was twenty years old and the man fifty. The gas was turned on, the indications being that it was done with suicidal intent. Putnam was a prominent member of the Society of Free Thinkers, and Miss Collins was a brilliant speaker and lecturer.

Fred Chamberlain of Seattle, Washington, who a few years ago married Mrs. Anna M. Potter, a wealthy young widow and society leader of Boston, has brought suit against Mrs. Josephine Curtis Woodbury and her husband for $25,000 damages for alienating his wife's affections. Mrs. Woodbury is widely known as a teacher of Christian science. Chamberlain claims that for two years or more his wife has been completely under the control of Mrs. Woodbury and refused to live with him.

Death of Travis Phillips.

Travis Phillips, the old gentleman who was taken from the west-bound train in an unconscious condition several days ago, died at a late hour last night. Mr. Phillips was a sufferer from bright disease and was on his way to Southern California for the benefit of his health. He was a resident of Aurora, Ill., and was 78 years of age. The remains will be shipped to his late home for interment.

The Holland Delft. The tea table is reached by the Holland tea table, its standard delft carved in mahogany or antique oak and inlaid with medallions in delft. The top is a movable tray in the beautiful china mounted in brass with heavily chased handles of the metal at either end. A complete tea service of delft accompanies it, making it a drawing room appointment of great beauty and expense. The well informed hostess, although delighted in its possession, will not claim for it genuineness, knowing that the lovely blue china now such a craze is but a close imitation. Only one perfect service of real old Holland delft is owned in this country, and that descended from Dutch ancestors and is so valuable as to be without fixed price.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Sway of the South.

How fascinating are the belts and sashes which form such important accessories in the fashion of the moment! Close fitting, deep folded belts made of satin or silk are worn with toilets of silk, fine mohair and grass lawn. The newest ribbon belts are finished off with a flat piping on each side of white silk or satin, but if the belt is black or dark in color the piping may be in a light, contrasting shade. Loosely draped sashes look best on youthful figures, and folded belts crossed in front are most becoming to stouter shapes. Even plain dresses may be converted into smart, stylish toilets if the belt or sash and the collar and bows are chosen to correspond and in good taste.—New York Advertiser.

Only a Trifling Difference.

Stickem—What's the difference between a scorcher and the anticyclone crusaders?

Stickem—Give it up. Stickem—One wheels to beat the band, while the others band to beat the wheels.—New York World.

Ancient Cards.

In early French cards the kings were named David, Alexander, Cesar and Charlemagne, representing the monarchs of the Jews, Greeks, Romans and French.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant, family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists. If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

THE BEST PASSPORT.

It is to Always Look Pleasant and Do Not Grumble.

"What is the first duty of a good traveler?" asked a young lady who was about to start from New York on an extended European tour.

"To look pleasant and never to grumble," was the answer of a veteran wanderer who had crossed the ocean 20 times and gone twice around the world.

It was a good prescription and will help to make a good traveler of anybody. The fatigue of the longest journey can be patiently endured if one can only be amiable and avoid the weariness that comes from fretting over what is unavoidable and worrying over what is avoidable.

An American girl not long ago spoiled the pleasure of a party of tourists by complaining of everything on sea and on land. The ship was a dreadful roller, the cabins were badly ventilated, the cooking was abominable, the service was shocking, the officers were uncivil, and the passengers were disagreeable and stupid. Nothing suited her, and she had not a good word for anybody.

Every member of the party was indignant over her want of amiability.

"It makes me almost seasick merely to look at her!" exclaimed one of the ladies.

"Perhaps she will cheer up," was the charitable response, "when she reaches port."

But she was as unhappy on land as she had been at sea. She was angry with the customs officers and told them that they had mauled and ruined her best gown. She found fault with the lovely rural scenery between Southampton and London. She pronounced English cooking to be utterly vile. She invigorated bitterly against the weather and the climate. She was not interested in cathedrals, castles, palaces, pictures, colleges, ruins or country roads. She was bored by everything she saw.

One night she received a round robin signed by every other member of the party, expressing regret that she was not enjoying her journey and offering their sympathies in her vexations and discomforts. It was a bold stroke on the part of her friends, who were worn out by her tiresome peevishness. Fortunately it was not unsuccessful. Not another word of complaint was heard from her during the remainder of the tour.

A pleasant, cheerful face and manner that express kindness and good will make the best passport which a traveler can carry into a foreign country. They insure civility and courtesy from officials, fellow travelers and strangers and are an unfailing resource whenever there is any misadventure.— Youth's Companion.

TWO VIEWS OF PENSIONS.

Not Many Rich In Our Wars, Writes Ex-President Harrison.

"There may be fair differences of opinion as to the extent and conditions of pension relief, but there is no room for doubts as to pensions," writes ex-President Harrison in "The Ladies' Home Journal." "Eleven dollars a month for war service implies at least relief in case of wounds or sickness for the soldier and that the public will care for his widow and minor children. It was otherwise, and when our rich men take to fighting our wars we can abolish the pension system, but thus far it is as historically true of the armies that won our independence, delivered us from the Indians and the British and saved the nation in the great civil war as of the kingdom of heaven. 'Not many rich.'"

"There are two views of the pension question—one from the Little Round Top at Gettysburg, looking out over a field sown thickly with the dead and around upon bloody, blackened and maimed men cheering the shot torn banners of their country; the other from an office desk on a busy street or from an endowed chair in a university, looking only upon a statistical table."

Wealth of Actors.

The wealth of actors is generally overestimated. Joseph Jefferson, Sol Smith Russell, Joseph Murphy and William Crane are rich men, of whose solid fortunes there is little doubt. But most of them, like Nat Goodwin and Henry E. Dixey, while they make enormous sums, spend money as if they were possessed of Fortunatus' purse. They seem to go on the principle that governed Sarah Bernhardt, when at one of her periodic auctions in Paris, she replied to some-body who protested against her prodigality: "I have my capital in use, and it will last as long as I do. When I lose it, I shall no longer be in need of money."—San Francisco Argonaut.

CANDY AND MARRIED LIFE.

Why Some Husbands Don't Supply Their Wives With Confectionery.

"Oh, how perfectly lovely!" said the girl in the pink dress. "I do so dote on candy."

"Especially chocolate nougat," declared the young woman in white.
"It is just too sweet for anything."

"Where did you get them? Was it Charley or Bob?"

"It was Charley," replied the girl with the box in her hand. "He always has the nicest candy."

"But you like Bob best?"

"Agnes, dear, you are entirely too inquisitive."

"You mustn't get married if you like candy."

"What has that to do with it?"

"Didn't you ever hear that the man who buys candy before you get married never buys you any after they are married?"

"Is that so?"

"That's what this papers say."

"Pooh! I don't believe a word of it!
But, then, that's just like some of the horrid men. I know one who won't do it."

"Oh, I say, girls. What luck! Here comes Hank. We'll ask her about it."

"Wouldn't I, though?"

Maud drew near, and all the girls giggled merrily.

"Oh, Maud, you're married, aren't you?"

"Why, what a silly question! Were not you one of the bridesmaids?"

"Oh, yes, we all saw her, and she looked just perfectly killing."

"Well, I wanted to ask you a question."

"Certainly, dear. What is it?"

"Well, does Dick buy you any candy now that you are married? You know he used to buy you lots of it—whole candy stores full of it."

"No, he doesn't."

"What did I tell you?" exclaimed the girl in pink. "It is just what I said."

"Well, maybe they are not all like Dick."

"What do you mean?" exclaimed Maud. "I never did see such a girl.
Why didn't you let me finish saying what I wanted to say? I was going to say something and you broke right in.
I was going to say that he doesn't buy any candy because I don't want him to.
What's his is mine, and I just take his money and buy it whenever I want it.
It is a much better arrangement, too, for I buy the kind I like and he seldom did."—Chicago Times-Herald.

The Coming Gown.

If there's one thing more certain than another about the coming gown, it is that it will be trimmed. Not just skirt alone, nor yet just bodice alone, but both will be heavily, richly and elaborately burdened with every sort of trimming. Is it that fashion, deprived of her beloved big sleeves, must have some other outlet and finds it in frills and frillery? From present indications it seems likely that plain skirts—skirts, that is to say, unembellished by frills or bands or tucks or even a slight drapery —will soon have disappeared from mortal view. As for bodices, well, sleeves may be close closed. But what of the multitudinous flounces and shirtings and gatherings and drapings? Surely nothing short of "in full sail" describes them.

Embroidery is the most imperative detail of the coming gown. Have your new fall frock embroidered in however insignificant a way, and you will have given it a stamp that may not, it is true, by right belong to it, but which will mean "from Paris." And most impressive of all, it will mean that your new fall frock will cost "the right" more than it would unembroidered. The present tendency to trimming altogether, indeed, means that "People may talk about the costliness of simplicity and the price you have to pay for exquisite plainness, but as a matter of fact that sort of thing doesn't really "come near as high" as the velvets, silks, passementerie, embroidery and other delectable devices for wheedling pence out of pockets that the present season is so industriously planning.—New York Sun.
